Important Health Warning About Playing Video Games

Photosensitive seizures

A very small percentage of people may experience a seizure when exposed to certain visual images, including flashing lights or patterns that may appear in video games. Even people who have no history of seizures or epilepsy may have an undiagnosed condition that can cause these "photosensitive epileptic seizures" while watching video games.

These seizures may have a variety of symptoms, including lightheadedness, altered vision, eye or face twitching, jerking or shaking of arms or legs, disorientation, confusion, or momentary loss of awareness. Seizures may also cause loss of consciousness or convulsions that can lead to injury from falling down or striking nearby objects.

Immediately stop playing and consult a doctor if you experience any of these symptoms. Parents should watch for or ask their children about the above symptoms—children and teenagers are more likely than adults to experience these seizures. The risk of photosensitive epileptic seizures may be reduced by taking the following precautions: Sit farther from the screen; use a smaller screen; play in a well-lit room; do not play when you are drowsy or fatigued.

If you or any of your relatives have a history of seizures or epilepsy, consult a doctor before playing.

What is the PEGI System?

The PEGI age-rating system protects minors from games unsuitable for their particular age group. PLEASE NOTE it is not a guide to gaming difficulty. Comprising two parts, PEGI allows parents and those purchasing games for children to make an informed choice appropriate to the age of the intended player. The first part is an age rating:

The second is icons indicating the type of content in the game. Depending on the game, there may be a number of such icons. The age-rating of the game reflects the intensity of this content. The icons are:

PROLOGUE

A great war wreaked havoc and devastation upon humanity. Abandoned cities, environmental collapse, a world too contaminated to restore itself... It has been 300 years since the Lost Age began. The remnants of humanity banded together in colonies throughout the wastelands to restore some semblance of the lives they once had.

A tower rose within a city long abandoned by people. No one knew who made the tower or even when it was made. Some even said the tower rose there by itself. However, all who gazed upon the mysterious pillar of light from afar feared the impenetrable fortress.

The people's fears became reality, as the tower became a dire threat. The diabolos, a dark and vile substance spawned from the mysterious tower, contaminated the colonies nearby, mutating their people into the soulless and brutal infected. Once changed, the infected hunted down and slaughtered any human they could find.

The people of the colonies enlisted volunteers and created a militia to stop the diabolos. Now one of the last squads to deploy comes across a man wielding a dark and twisted gun, with an aura like death itself. He joins the squad as they head out to destroy the tower...
